DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 31-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sugawara et al. (5,829,219).

Sugawara et al. disclose a vehicle roof frame comprising side frame members (12) and cross member (14). The side frame members (12) have protrusions (15) that have an upper portion with a corrugated configuration. The cross members (14) have corrugated end portions (23) that receive the protrusions (15). The end section of the cross members (14) and the upper portion of the protrusions (15) have matching shapes that align. The cross members and the protrusions are welded together. The bead of the weld is considered a releasable fastener because it can be broken to release the connection between the two components.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-5, 7-14, and 20-30 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 10/7/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applicant has argued that the welded connections between the cross members and the protrusions of the invention of Sugawara et al. does not anticipate the releasable fasteners used to connect the cross members and protrusions of the applicant's invention because the process of breaking the weld/re-welding process needed to release and fasten the components of Sugawara et al. would weaken the structure. The examiner agrees that this process would likely reduce the strength of the cross members and protrusions of Sugawara et al. if repeated several times. However, the term "releasable fasteners" does not overcome this rejection because the process of breaking welds then re-welding still reads on this limitation. No limitation has been directed at the ability of the applicant's invention to undergo multiple releasings/fastenings of the fasteners without damaging or weakening of the cross members or protrusions.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
